07:01

Climate welcome for Canada's new prime minister

Report: Sian Griffiths, Ottawa, Canada

11/12/2015

For nearly a decade, Canada has been regarded as a "climate villain." Under Stephen Harper's conservative government, Ottawa pulled out of the Kyoto Protocol, pursuing the expansion of oil and tar sand production. Now, Liberal leader Justin Trudeau is at the helm. Trudeau promises the days of "dirty Canada" are over. Activists staged a "climate welcome" to remind the new leader to "walk the talk."

© 2025 Deutsche Welle | Privacy Policy | Legal notice | Digital accessibility | Data privacy settings